

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

ATLAS PEAK, NAPA VALLEY

2024

EARTHWORK

THE VINEYARD Atlas Peak is located in Napa Valley on the western slopes of the Vaca mountain range. Atlas Peak is the most prominent peak in the area rising to 2,663 feet elevation. Its history as a wine region dates back to the 1800s, but it wasn't until 1992 that the Atlas Peak AVA was formally approved. Stagecoach Vineyard provides a foundation of excellent structure and concentration from blocks of Cabernet Sauvignon. Two other neighboring Cabernet Sauvignon vineyards provide distinct characteristics to the blend. One is located on the upper slopes of Atlas Peak and contributes bright blue fruit flavors with silky tannins. The third vineyard is located lower on the mountain in a cooler site that adds a robust dark fruit profile with graphite notes.

WINEMAKER NOTES The 2024 Napa Valley growing season was warm, steady and consistent throughout the growing season. In winter, Napa received 10% more precipitation than usual, allowing the vines to prosper in the warm days throughout the summer and early autumn. The resulting wines are plush, generous and sophisticated. This vintage, we crafted a remarkably balanced and complex Cabernet Sauvignon by anchoring the blend with fruit from the iconic Stagecoach Vineyard, alongside two neighboring premier sites. Together, these vineyards showcase the distinctive, volcanic terroir of this famed mountaintop. The result is a bold, deeply layered Cabernet Sauvignon that embodies the very essence of the appellation, weaving intense dark fruit and structural power with a striking mineral tension and a long, seamless finish.
